Ethan Allen

EARLY AMERICAN FURNITURE

by Baumritter

Ethan Allen

AND THE AMERICAN HERITAGE

Ethan Allen and his famed "Green Mountain Boys" are a glorious part of our great American Heritage. During the night of May 10, 1776, with only 83 other Vermont patriots, Ethan Allen assaulted and captured Fort Ticonderoga from British regulars. Cannon taken from the fort were used by George Washington in forcing the British to evacuate Boston, and formed the basis of the American artillery forces during the Revolutionary war.

The fame of Ethan Allen as a leader in the Revolution grew until today he is acknowledged as one of the truly authentic heroes of those stirring times. In Vermont, too, because of his energetic struggles in behalf of that state, he is known as "The father of Vermont."

The furniture named for him is made in the same Green Mountains he fought for so bravely. It is furniture that seeks to capture for contemporary American living, the charm and strength of a great era in American history.

Keynote: Informal Beauty

TODAY more than ever before modern American's are taking true pride in their homes. Home entertainment and the pleasure of the family circle – these are the corner stones of our leisure time—whether we live in modest apartments or large homes, the need is for settings in which we can entertain comfortably, informally and in good taste.
